Daisy has no money.
“Take my milk
to market,” says
the farmer.

I'll give you
a gold coin.

“Yes!” says Daisy.

And she sets off for the market.

"Soon I'll have some money," she thinks.

I can buy a hen.

My hen will lay eggs...

...lots of
eggs.

I can sell my eggs.

Best eggs in all
the land!

I'll have lots
of money!

I'll buy a pretty dress...

...and sparkly shoes.

But I won't get dressed by myself.

I'll have servants to
help me!

I'll marry a prince.

I'll be a princess.

We'll live in a palace...

...with golden gates.

We'll have a ball.

I'll twirl and whirl in my new dress.

SPLISH!

SPLASH!

SPLOSH!

The milk is gone!
Poor Daisy.

Cheer up!
There's no use crying
over spilt milk.

About The Daydreamer

The Daydreamer is one of Aesop's Fables, a collection of stories first told in Ancient Greece. Today, different versions of the story are told all around the world. In India, the daydreamer is a poor man who dreams of selling his last bowl of food. In Russia, the daydreamer is a thief who dreams of selling stolen cucumbers.

USBORNE FIRST READING: LEVEL TWO

The Daydreamer

Daisy doesn't have any money, but she has lots of imagination. When a farmer offers her a gold coin, she dreams of all the things she could buy... and then disaster strikes!

The Daydreamer is in the Usborne First Reading series, written especially for children who are learning to read, and developed in consultation with Alison Kelly, Principal Lecturer in Education and reading specialist at Roehampton University. With delightful illustrations, these books combine great stories with simple text to excite and inspire any beginner reader.
